Book of the Provisional Government

We had written and print more than 500 books of the Provisional Government into Indonesia and English version. Those books had already spread to officials of the Provisional Government throughout the entire land of West Papua and international fora like the Pacific Islands Forum, the United Nations and member countries of the United Nations, ASEAN Secretariat and Indonesia government etc. These books also need more editing and addition.

The world is comprised states and governments that are distinct and separate from each other in terms of policies, resources, and political make up. They provide a stage by which their distinction form others. Without both there would be confusion. They provide people with and organized and stable place to live. While one might think that the state and government are the same entities, they are actually two separate concepts.
